

Open space creativity with Sequenze

Modern day interiors requires multiple function furniture like the new Sequenze modular sofa system designed by Emiliana Design Studio for Swedish furniture brand Mitab.

Sequenze is a sofa system for large open spaces in public interiors. It works as a sequential room dividing sofa, at the same time creating spaces for social meetings, aside workspaces or comfortable relaxation.

Sequenze is a system based on 3 original elements. Each element can be altered in a number of configurations creating an endless set of variations. 2 sofas with upholstery back (high or low) and a seat that can be shifted either to the left or the right with an optional table. The sofas are complemented by a seating bench.

The shifted seat signals the sequential idea of the product. Build continuously for as long as you like. There is no limit other than the space you need to furnish. Sequenze is an activity based interior product following the trends of modern day work life. The width of the sections are 180cm, leaving an impression of a wall providing multiple functions as it is upholstered on both front and back side. Pin your ideas on the back side or use Sequenze as a room dividing element.

The Sequenze back is intended to be upholstered with a quilted fabric, something quite trendy thanks to new efficient production methods. The possibility to use different fabrics or colours on different sections of the upholstery also creates a wide range of possible variations to meet the customers wishes for identity in an interior.

Emiliana Design Studio was founded by Emili Padros and Ana Mir in Barcelona 1996. Emiliana Design's vision begins from the experimentation and the prospective new scenes, where the objective is that the relationship between objects, spaces and users are emotional, participatory and creative. We believe in feeling!... We like Mitab because it is a company with the value of a long tradition and a rich knowhow.
